Take Possession Of Center Of City To Insure Election Of President

SANTO DOMINGO, DOMINICAN REPUBLIC, MAY 15.—American marines who had been landed on Dominican soil entered Santo Domingo today and took possession of the center of the city. The rebel leaders had withdrawn with their forces Saturday night after being warned by the American minister, W. W. Russell, that the city would be taken by force unless the rebels evacuated it by Sunday morning. The entry of the American forces was unopposed.

The public was advised today thru officers of the municipal government that Minister Russell had made it known that the object of the American occupation was to guarantee the free election by congress of a provisional president to succeed General Juan I. Jimenes, resigned. Order is being maintained.

Body Is Found on Railroad

The lifeless body of Charles Johnson, 46, engineer in the C. & M. yards at Newcomerstown, was found Sunday morning on the outskirts of Cambridge, lying along the railroad track with a hole in the back of his head and a cut in the upper lip. Foul play was discredited by the finding of $60 in money, a diamond ring and a gold watch on the body.

Johnson had ridden a freight train from Newcomerstown late Saturday and alighted at the outskirts of Cambridge where he expected to catch a street car for his home. He entered a confectionery store, made a purchase and asked in regard to the street car service. Upon being told that the cars had stopped running for the night, Johnson left the store and was not seen again until his body was found Sunday morning.

Until two years ago, Johnson lived in Newcomerstown. Since moving to Cambridge it had been his custom to work at Newcomerstown thruout the week, returning home Saturday night. He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Miss Elodie, of the home and the following brothers and sisters: W. B. Johnson, of this city; John L. Johnson, of the Steubenville road; Mrs. J. P. Spence, of Cambridge, and Mrs. Armintha Colley, of Columbus.

The arrangements for the funeral will not be completed until the arrival of Mrs. Johnson's sister from Salt Lake City, but it was stated last night that the funeral would probably be held Wednesday.

Mother's Day Is Observed

Mother's Day at Coshocton was observed in practically all the churches with appropriate exercises including special addresses and music. Many of the city's residents spent the day with homefolks in other cities, and many a Coshocton mother was made glad by the arrival of her son or daughter. Flowers were in great demand for more than a week preceding the day. Saturday cut flowers could not be obtained and good potted flowers were scarce. Carnations sold at 85 cents per dozen for the pink and white blossoms, the red carnation crop having been exhausted early in the week.

Manning Is Found Guilty

William Manning was for the second time found guilty of selling intoxicating liquors when he faced Mayor H. L. Richardson Monday. He has three days to file a motion for a new trial, and, if at that time he has not done so, Mayor Richardson will pass sentence.

Manning, it will be remembered was arrested as an aftermath of the Holmes and McClelland liquor cases. He was tried, found guilty, and filed motion for a new trial which was granted. The case was heard Monday with the above result. Two witnesses testified that they bought liquor of Manning.

Manley Exposes Dodgers Of The Income Tax Law

No series of articles in recent years has aroused so much interest as the series just completed by the noted economist, Basil M. Manley for the Newspaper Enterprise Association and run in a number of large daily papers.

These articles dealt with the operation of the income tax law. They show that the income tax law has been dodged in a year to the tune of $320,000,000. Mr. Manley's articles have not indulged in mere speculation and theorizing. He has submitted facts and figures to support his charges thruout.

In his closing article, as carried in The Cleveland Press, he sums up his findings as follows:

The evidence in the greatest case of the country—The United States Government vs. the Income Tax Thieves—has now been presented.

You—the American people—are the jury. Your decision must now be rendered and your verdict enforced by your representatives in congress and the treasury department.

The evidence shows in brief: Evasion of taxes amounting in the aggregate to more than three hundred and twenty million dollars.

Every dollar of this enormous total is needed at once by the federal government to pay the cost of preparedness and those great measures of social service which are essential for real national efficiency.

If these millions are not collected from the tax thieves the people—you will have to pay at the rate of $16 for every American family. Enormity Of Frauds Is Proven; Identity Of Thieves Is Revealed.

Not only is the evidence conclusive regarding the enormous size of these frauds, but the identity of the thieves has in large measure been revealed.

The thieves who have stolen these millions from the treasury are, as a class, the same men who, for the past quarter century, have monopolized the land and natural resources of our nation, concentrating the ownership and control of American corporations in the hands of a few, and, by marking up the prices of commodities so that they are now nearly 100 per cent higher than in 1896, have drained into their own coffers the results of America's unparalleled productive capacity.

The great tax thieves are the American multimillionaires. The evidence tends to show that in one case alone—the estate of L. V. Harkness—the published facts indicate, evasion involving in taxes and penalties more than one million dollars.

The evidence tends to show the Rockefeller Foundation as a device by which John D. Rockefeller has escaped taxation upon more than five million dollars of his annual income. Great Frauds in Theatre Industry and Steamship Lines Uncovered.

Water From Fire Main Is Used By Service Company

Criminal proceedings may be brought as a result of the discovery of the fact that a two and one-half inch water main had been tapped at the Ohio Service Company plant, North Fourth street, without permission from city authorities.

The discovery was made yesterday when Floyd Courtright, of the waterworks department, was reading the water meter at the power plant. Courtright found that water from this main was being used at the time of his visit to the plant while no water was being used thru the water meter.

Mayor Orders Probe.

Mayor H. L. Richardson said last night that he had ordered the matter probed to the bottom. "The company will have to settle for the water which has been taken and criminal proceedings will be brought if we find the facts of the case justify such action," he said.

Whole Plant Connected.

When Courtright notified the mayor of his discovery, the mayor ordered Safety-Server Sam Ashman and City Engineer Fisher to make an investigation. They found that the two and one-half inch main, which had been left there by the city for protection of the plant against fire, had been tapped and water from this pipe was being run thruout the plant. The water meter is on a one and one-half inch pipe and the company has been paying for water according to meter readings. Water from the larger main did not pass thru the meter. According to the statement of one of the employees of the plant, the fire main was tapped previous to the erection of the new turbine plant several years ago.

Object To Bill.

It is said that officials of the company objected to their water bill and Courtright was sent to the plant to make another reading of the meter. This resulted in the discovery.

The company pays for water at the rate of 19 3/4 cents per thousand cubic feet.

Howell Explains.

Last night C. H. Howell, manager of the Ohio Service Company, made the following explanations:

"The smaller line referred to and to which the meter is attached is used during the winter months to supply our heating system. At the present time we have no use for the line and is why Mr. Courtright found the valve closed when he went to the plant Monday morning.

Costly Turbine.

"We have a high pressure tank over the plant which is kept filled from our own deep well pump and which supplies the needs for water in the new plant. This new plant includes a $41,000 steam turbine and it is necessary to have a continuous flow of cold water thru the oiling system of this machine to save the bearings from burning out. A failure of these bearings occasioned by the failure of water supply would mean a tremendous loss to the company and the retirement of service over the entire system to the inconvenience of some forty-five hundred customers. In order to provide against such a failure Superintendent of Power Mr. Dolan made application to Mr. Courtright some two and one-half years ago for a meter to be installed on this three inch line. The universal practice of this company is to furnish meters free of any expense to the customer and it is only necessary for the customer to make application for service. It now appears that the company would be required by the water works to advance something like $125 to provide funds to purchase a suitable meter with. At the time our application was made we were not informed of this requirement and apparently no further attention was paid to the matter. In the meantime the matter escaped our attention until it was discovered Monday by Mr. Ashman. Please bear in mind that this connection was made only to duplicate the service from our own water system in case it should fail and therefore is only used in case of emergency such as occurred Monday morning at three o'clock when a lightning storm retired the service of the system and burned out one of the large generators at New Philadelphia which was on the line at the time. This made it necessary to restore service quickly by placing this big unit at Coshocton on the line and the operator did not have time to start up our own water pump to provide water for the turbine bearings.

Willing To Pay.

"Mr. Ashman called me to his office Monday morning and informed me of what he had found at the plant at six o'clock a. m. and I assured him that if an error had been made it was entirely unintentional and the company stood ready and willing to reimburse the city for any water that it might have gotten without charge. I furthermore stated to him that if he wished to make a further inspection at the plant it was an open book and Mr. Dolan would be on duty to show him anything that he might want to know."

LAKE ITASCATE, MEX., MAY 14.—(By wireless) to Columbus, N. M., MAY 15.—Three bandits, including Julio Gardena the Villa leader, were killed in a skirmish with an American detachment, near Rubio Ranch, 20 miles east of here today.

The Americans, 12 in number, under the command of Lieutenant George S. Patton, comprised an automobile detachment sent to purchase forage. Bandits fired upon Lieutenant Patton and his men as they were approaching a ranch house. The American deployed to prevent the escape of the snipers and Lieutenant Patton returned the fire, wounding the bandits, who meanwhile fled thru the rear of the house. Overlaken later the Mexicans engaged the Americans in a rifle duel in which the three Mexicans were killed.

There were no American casualties. The bodies of the Mexicans were brought here and buried. Papers in their pockets revealed their identity.

ANOTHER WEEK OF FEATURES
AS USUAL AT THE MYSTIC

The Mystic Theatre announces another big program for the coming week starting today and Monday with Blanche Sweet in "The Black List." There will be no matinee today. The "Black List" is the name given to the system by which certain big industrial concerns keep track of discharged employees, making it impossible, thru the interchange of information, for the employee to obtain work elsewhere.

With Blanche Sweet as the star, the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company presents on the Paramount Program a thrilling photoplay in which, for the first time in the history of the screen, this much despised system of "black-listing" is exposed. The play is entitled "The Black List" and was written by William C. DeMille and Marion Fairfax.

Many will discover in this photoplay a parallel with the horrible happenings and revelations of a year ago when in Colorado the state and federal troops were called to quell a war of death between striking miners and mine guards.

Blanche Sweet, whose power as an actress of strong and intensely human roles has increased with her growing popularity, appears in the leading role in "The Black List." Into her hands is given the fate of thousands of striking miners who have taken up arms against strike-breakers. The story does not end with a thrilling representation of the conflict but is carried thru to a conclusion in which the authors give a substantial remedy to the problem of the war between capital and labor.

FOIL FOREIGN PLOTTERS BY "FLYING TORPEDO"
 Imaginary Invasion in 1921.

How an eccentric detective story writer foiled the enemies of this country and made possible the use of a novel means of defense which saved the nation is told in a thrilling story of the future called "The Flying Torpedo." This Fine Arts-Triangle story is coming to the Mystic theatre next Tuesday. Because of this nation's unpreparedness, there is much doubt and confusion among the people. There has been a board of defense organized including the most distinguished inventors. At the suggestion of the head of the board, an offer of $1,000,000 is made for the most useful invention for defense purposes. Winthrop Clavering (John Emerson), an eccentric author, suggests to his friend Bartholomew Thompson (Spottiswoode Aitken) that he perfect an aerial torpedo governed by wireless. Clavering advances funds to Thompson, who goes immediately to work.

The flying torpedo is finally perfected and at a private test it meets every requirement. There is a band of international crooks, who have spies watching the test. That night the crooks steal the wireless torpedo from Thompson's workshop. Then Thompson sets to work with the encouragement and financial assistance of Clavering to make another model for the Government experts. The crooks send one of their number in the guise of a telephone inspector to Thompson. He affixes a capsule to the receiving arm of a telephone in the workshop. When an accomplice calls up Thompson, the inventor unhook the receiver and is suffocated by the fumes from the broken capsule. See this wonderful picture founded on facts, and get the rest of the story. It is guaranteed by the home office of Triangle. Remember one of the great two reel Keystone comedies are always presented with a Triangle drama.

Bessie Barriscale will be seen at the Mystic Wednesday in a Triangle. Bessie Barriscale, the star whose screen triumphs have led her to the front rank of film artists within the past year, is presented by Thomas H. Lee for the fourth time on the Triangle program in an absorbing war romance from the pen of J. G. Hawks, entitled "Bullets and Brown Eyes." The production is totally different from anything in which Miss Barriscale heretofore has appeared.

"Bullets and Brown Eyes" is the tale of a Prince's wooing and winning of a countess. Its scenes are laid in the mythical countries of Bothalia and Marsow while they are at war, and are replete with thrilling battles. How the reckless prince of one country succeeds in his quest for the Countess of the other is beautifully told.

To the role of Countess Olga Miss Barriscale is said to contribute all the charm that has helped to make her a nationwide favorite. Her vivacity as well as her dramatic ability finds ready outlet in the part.

An interesting fact in connection with the production is that it will serve to introduce a new leading man opposite Miss Barriscale. He is William Desmond, who supported Billie Burke in "Peggy," and his interpretation of the part of Prince Carl, "The Will o' the Wisp," is said to be a splendid piece of work. In addition Wednesday a fine two reel Keystone comedy will be flashed.

MARGUERITE CLARK IS COMING THURSDAY

The breath of the great out-of-doors has been breathed into "Out of the Drifts," a stirring drama of the Swiss Alps in which Marguerite Clark is starred by the Famous Players Film Company on the Paramount Program. In this great tale of the towering peaks and deep-sunken valleys, which is the feature at the Mystic Thursday during the current week, the diminutive star plays the most thrilling role which she has enacted since "Helene of the North." It is unnecessary to ask you to come early Thursday as it is a known fact that Miss Clark always packs 'em.

VITAGRAPH LEADING MAN
HERE FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

Charles Richman, Vitagraph leading man, had the most thrilling experience of his career recently while acting in that company's latest release, "The Hero of Submarine D-2." Richman is the hero, and in order to justify his claim to that distinction is shot thru a torpedo tube from a submerged submarine, rises to the surface, boards a merchant ship and explodes mines permanently that would have blown to pieces the entire Atlantic fleet.

An attempt was made to fake that part of the script, but believing in absolute realism in art, Richman insisted in carrying out the scene to the letter.

AT THE MYSTIC SOON
 Among the features coming to the Mystic soon are "The Battle Cry of Peace," "The Never Do Well," and Charley Chaplin in "Carmen."

KITTY GORDON NOTED
BRITISH BEAUTY

Kitty Gordon, for years a noted beauty of the stage, will be seen for the first time on the screen in the new World Film production, "As in a Looking Glass," at the Pastime today and tomorrow afternoon and evening. Miss Gordon's statuesque type of beauty proved to be admirably adapted to the requirements of motion pictures, and the directors of the World Film Corporation unhesitatingly announce that with her first appearance as a film actress Miss Gordon will become instantly recognized as the loveliest of screen stars.

The story of "As in a Looking Glass," adapted from the novel of the same name, by F. C. Phillips, provides Miss Gordon with opportunities for remarkable emotional acting, as well as for the display of a succession of the most dazzling creations of the modistes and milliners' art. The greater part of the action occurs in Washington, D. C., in diplomatic circles, affording splendid chances for brilliant costume and set-piece embellishment.

Acuteness
Has Passed
Says Scott

WASHINGTON, MAY 13.—The acuteness of the Mexican situation has passed, in the judgment of General Scott, chief of staff, according to a message received at the war department this afternoon.

Scott wired General Pershing has so arranged his troops that he could clear out the bandits of northern Mexico and that no Mexican troops are in sight near the American communications line.

General Scott expressed the view that General Obregon now is in a better position to aid the American expedition than if he had signed an actual agreement.

As evidence of this, Scott reported that Obregon had promised to dispose of the Carranzistas as to patrol the Parral district and region south of the Big Bend.

Detroit Loses
Thru Decision

LANSING, MICH., MAY 13.—The new Michigan automobile tax law, which assesses automobiles upon the basis of horse power, was upheld as constitutional by the state supreme court today. The city of Detroit attacked the constitutionality of the law.

Counsel for the city contended the law was unconstitutional because it devolved to the state highway fund tax money which the constitution provided should go to the state primary school fund.

It is estimated that the law will remove nearly $20,000,000 from the personal assessment rolls of the city of Detroit.

MANLEY EXPOSES

Steamship companies involving millions of dollars in taxes and thousands of individuals, have been uncovered.

The evidence reveals the ineffectiveness of the existing income tax law and shows the great loopholes left by "jokers" in the act through which hundreds of millions of dollars have so far succeeded in avoiding taxation.

The utter inadequacy both in numbers and ability of the treasury department's collection force is clearly revealed.

Not only is there only one income tax agent for every 500,000 of the population, but $1500 clerks are pitted against the shrewdest lawyers and most skillful accountants in the nation.

Undation of all Frauds Lie Awaiting Foundation of All Frauds Lies in Law's Guarantee of Secrecy.

But at the base of all the frauds lies the provision of the law which guarantees complete secrecy regarding all income tax transactions.

Under this cloak of secrecy is concealed not only the identity of the thieves, but the very existence of the frauds, which might well have continued to escape notice for years in the absence of such prolonged and expensive investigation as I have made.

In the dark shadows of secrecy not only is the tax thief concealed, but there is created a certain breeding place for graft and corruption of government officials.

President Wilson and Secretary McAdoo are empowered by the terms of the income tax law to remove this mantle of secrecy and to make the tax returns public so that the tax thieves may be known and the frauds ended.

Publication of returns is the first essential of efficient collection.

During the civil war the returns were published and enormous amounts at fraud were uncovered. When a reactionary congress at the end of the war enacted that the returns should be kept secret, because publicity was "obnoxious to the taxpayer," the number of returns fell from 31,887 in 1870 to 71,775 in 1871, although the latter year was one of unprecedented prosperity.

Every Resident of United States is Actual Victim of Tax Thieves.

Every man, woman and child in these United States is the victim of the exchequer. If the tax had been fully paid the emergency war tax would have been abolished, the tariff on sugar, which has increased the price 50 per cent in a few weeks, would not have been retained, and the federal government would now have in the vaults of the treasury the millions which must be paid for the increase of the army and navy.

The very men who have called for great army and navy expenditures to protect their property yet at the same time robbing the treasury of hundreds of millions of dollars.

The income tax must be paid and paid in full. In the face of the array of evidence that has been presented, President Wilson and congress cannot resist or postpone effective action.

THE FIRST VIOLIN

By LOUISE B. CUMMINGS

Fraulein Bertha Hauck left Germany just before the breaking out of the pan European war to come to America. She was to be followed by a lover, Gustav Schultz, a young musician. They were both of the more refined class of Germans, but not noble. Their finances were cramped, and it was impossible for them to marry and live among the people with whom they had been used to associate. In America they could earn a living as they would not like to earn it where they were known.

Bertha had enough money saved to enable her to cross the ocean, and it was decided that she should come over in advance of her lover, who was serving his time of military service, which would not expire for several months. Bertha was to look into the new country and, if possible, make an engagement for him, with an orchestra. In this way they might be self supporting at once on Gustav's arrival.

Bertha arrived in New York, found friends who had come over years before and as soon as she had settled herself went out to look for an engagement for Gustav. She met the leader of an orchestra, who promised her that as soon as her lover arrived he would give him a trial. All was arranged, and the girl was expecting her lover to sail for New York when news came that Germany had declared war upon Russia, and the rush of German troops into Belgium commenced.

From that day forward the fraulein heard nothing of her lover. She knew that, since war had been declared, he would not be permitted to come away even if he had chosen to come. Then came news of the fighting in Belgium, followed by more than a year of warfare. Bertha heard nothing from Gustav nor from any of her relatives. She had no great expectation of hearing from her lover, but thought she should hear from her mother and sisters. That she did not was probably because the censorship had caused the destruction of letters that might have been mailed to her.

At last, after waiting a year, a letter came stating that Gustav had been reported among the missing several months before, and since nothing later had been heard from him he was undoubtedly dead.

Bertha mourned for him as lost. True, if he were dead his identification badge should have been found. But if a man is buried under tons of earth caused by explosion or blown into numerous fragments what good is an identification badge? Nevertheless the poor girl had a ray of hope that Gustav lived and that they would one day be reunited.

Bertha was very handy with her brush and had the faculty of designing cards and other things needed at social functions. In this way she made quite a sum of money and, being frugal, had held on to nearly all of it. She met a countryman of hers, an artist much older than herself, who paid her a great deal of attention and ended by proposing marriage. But Bertha's heart was with her lover, be he alive or dead, and she would not listen to any other man.

Bertha's friends endeavored to cheer her by trying to induce her to go about with them to amusements. She yielded so far as music and pictures were concerned, but would not go anywhere else. Finally by holding up to her the fact that many scenes of moving picture plays were beautiful they excited some interest in them. When they told her that pictures of scenes in the great European war were given she was only too ready to see them.

She had been a number of times to see pictures embodying military service when one night the marching to the French rear of a number of German prisoners was given. What was her astonishment to see, pale and haggard, a bandage on his forehead, walking on a crutch while he held up one foot, Gustav Schultz. She at once became hysterical and was taken out of the building.

When she became sufficiently calm to tell what and moved her inquiries were made in her behalf as to the time the picture which included her lover had been taken. An approximate date was given and was found to be nearly coincident with that at which Gustav was reported missing.

Thinking it possible that her lover was alive and in a French hospital, Bertha determined to go and seek him. She crossed the ocean to England and from there went to Paris. At Paris she learned at what camp the prisoners taken in the fight after which Gustav was reported missing were interned, and there she went. Upon examining the rolls she found her lover's name as an inmate of a hospital.

One morning while Sergeant Schultz was lying on his cot reading a newspaper, an autumn sun shining at a near window, he heard a cry, and, looking up, there was Bertha staggering toward him with open arms. In another moment she had clasped him and he was in an embrace.

Schultz was expecting that if he was ever returned to Germany he would be discharged from the service, for his foot had been so shattered that he could never be able to walk upon it again except with difficulty. He had exchanged a good deal for the iron cross, which he considered a fair exchange. Bertha's story excited a good deal of interest and sympathy among the French officers, who finally obtained permission for Gustav to embark for America.

He is now in New York, first violin in an orchestra.

Proper Eating Habits.

One should not eat when tired, and eat lightly if suffering from any great emotion. Eat slowly always, and rest for half an hour after each meal. A woman who eats quickly or who hurries to pleasure or work immediately after a meal will almost invariably suffer from flushings and red features sooner or later.

YOUR HAIR'S WORST ENEMY—DIRT!

Every woman should realize the vital importance of cleanliness of hair. Not only to get the pretty, fluffy effect, but to keep the scalp working in healthy order and free from dandruff. Of all shampoos the most effective is Go-Go-Ol because it does this double work. It is a tonic, stimulating the scalp to throw off loose skin and excess oil, and the remarkable cleansing qualities thoroughly remove the grease and dirt from every strand.

For light, blond or gray hair Go-Go-Ol is invaluable. You cannot imagine how it will brighten and beautify! 50c a bottle. Full directions on label. Go-Go-Ol is absolutely harmless, easy to use and economical. Ask any of these leading druggists:

Why House Plants.

The psychological influence of growing plants on the child mind is of inestimable value. Then the mental sphere is peculiarly sensitive to everything. The sight of a tiny new frond curled ever so tightly and carefully growing and developing day by day catches the attention of the children, and they come to watch it through the various stages of growth till one day, lo! As complete self, a perfect leaf, is revealed to their mental vision and their souls exult. They have beheld a miracle.—Fannie Sprague Talbot in Good Health.

True Secret of Keeping Youthful Looking

(The Beauty Seeker.)

"The real secret of keeping young-looking and beautiful," says a well-known hygienic expert, "is to keep the liver and bowels normally active. Without these requisites, poisonous waste products remain in the system, polluting the blood and lodging in various organs, joints, etc. One becomes flabby, nervous, mentally sluggish, dull-eyed, wrinkled and sallow of face."
But to get liver and bowels working as they ought, without producing evil after-effects has been the problem. Fortunately there is a prescription of unquestioned merit, which may now be had in convenient tablet form. Its value is due largely to an ingredient derived from the humble May apple, or its root, which has been called "vegetable calomel" because of its effectiveness—though, of course, it is not to be classed with the real calomel of mercurial origin. There is no habit-forming constituent in "Santonal" tablets—that's the name—and therefore it is safe to use it as often as needed. On the contrary, these harmless vegetable tablets tend to impart tone and elasticity to the relaxed intestinal wall. Santonal tablets, which may be procured from any druggist, a dime's worth will do—will prove a revelation to any constipated, liver-troubled person."

The Constipation Curse

Constipation—clogged bowels cause pain and sickness; 95 per cent of our ills, say the authorities. Santonal Laxatives bring quick relief. All vegetable—contain no calomel. Ten doses for a dime at any druggist. Physician's sample free, upon request. If you mention this advertisement, The Santonal Remedies Co., Inc., 500 Madison Ave., Covington, Ky.

The "Honorable."

The title of "honorable" is used loosely in the United States, being given by courtesy to almost any one who holds or who has held an important public office. The title is especially bestowed upon members of congress, governors, state senators, judges of the higher courts and high federal officials. In Great Britain the title of honorable is borne by the house of commons as a body, by the members separately when referred to in debate, by judges of the high court of justice when not peers, and by all the children of dukes, marquises, earls (except the oldest son, who bears the courtesy title of lord), viscounts and barons.—Exchange.

"All Gone Up Here."

Little Doris, nearly three years old during a recent trip on the cars was much impressed by a bald-headed man who sat near her. Every time she rides on the train she looks for him. On her last ride as soon as she was seated she began asking her mother questions about him, but mother was engrossed in other things and paid no attention. Finally, she stood up and asked emphatically, rubbing the top of her head, "Where's that man that's all gone up here?"

The Pity of It

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Just an even hundred men answered "Here!" as the sergeant called the roll on the morning we awoke beside the Potomac. There was an even hundred as we marched away—as we took our first turn at picket—as we first sighted the enemy, as we went into battle for the first time. After the roar of guns and died away and the dead had been buried, only eighty-five men answered "Here!" to the sergeant's roll call in the morning.

A few weeks went by, and we stood shoulder to shoulder in battle line again, and when the sergeant called the roll, now only seventy-eight men answered "Here!" Then came Cold Harbor and the falling back to Malvern hill. Cannon boomed and musketry cracked all day long and far into the night. Wounded men cursed and groaned as they limped away or fell helpless—men pitched forward with but a single cry and died with their faces hidden in the weeds and grass. After Malvern Hill the sergeant called the roll again—not the same sergeant as before, for he was lying dead in the thickets at Fair Oaks—and this time only fifty-two men answered "Here!"

And so could you wonder that when recruits came down to us we looked upon them as intruders, even though they were good men and true, and had come to help us win victories? Their names were called with ours, and we heard them answer "Here!" But they were only with us; they could not be of us. They had come too late.

And at last came Appomattox and the surrender and then peace and the return to Washington. We were almost a full company again as we turned out on the meadows of Arlington for the last roll call. Upward of seventy living men could have answered "here!" to their names.

"Fall in, company G. Attention to roll call!"

It was not the sergeant who had called the roll after Fredericksburg, after Chancellorsville, after Gettysburg. It was a new man—one who had been promoted before his cheeks had scarcely been burned by the southern sun. But he had heard of the ties which bound the old veterans together—he realized what this last roll call meant to the survivors. And from the musty archives of the past he took the roll of the dead and called:

"Anson, Armstrong, Arncliffe!" No one replied.

"Berry, Bloomingdale, Benson, Burton, Beahm!" No one replied.

"Cary, Carter, Catman, Cumulings, Comstock!" No one replied.

And so he called, and so the silence of the death roll grew deeper.

"Young, Yeomans, Yager!" No one replied.

"York!"

"Here!"

And so he of all was the sole survivor, the last living man of company G. The only one who had a right to stand there in that line and answer to the last roll call. The others—ninety and nine—were crumpled at home or sleeping their last sleep on the hillside, in the valleys, in the forests and the thickets of Virginia.

The line cheered him as he stood apart, the last survivor of a glorious band which had fought in a dozen battles, but he turned his head away and wept.

Perhaps no act of war engendered more bitterness than the burning of the barns and houses in the Shenandoah valley under Sheridan's official order.

No warning was given unless the great clouds of smoke rising up here and there to signify destruction were taken as warnings of what was to come. A squad of men galloped up, the women and children were told the substance of the order, and the match was applied. An hour later they sat on the grass homeless and homeless, some of them naked and dumb in terror. There were tears and prayers and pleadings, but the order had gone forth.

By and by, as we rode up to a quaint old farmhouse, half hidden among the fruit trees, a rifle cracked and a trooper, shot through the head, fell off his horse. The black pillars of smoke dotting the valley had told the people what was coming. Here was one determined to protect his property—one man against company after company riding up and down and across. Ten minutes later the barn and the stacks were on fire and men under cover were keeping up a hot fire on the rifle pit. Just as another squad, attracted by the firing, came up a second man was hit and grievously wounded.

There was no more firing from the pit. Some of the scores of bullets fired into it must have found a target. There was a rush from all sides and the pit was captured. Fifty men had captured one. And that one? It was a lad not a day over fourteen, and one of our carbine bullets had taken his life. And when we laid him on the grass and saw that he had come home wounded from some battle up the valley—when the mother came out to us from the house and fell on her knees and wept and sobbed—when an old white-haired grandfather stood in the door, helpless to come out and look into our faces, but weeping out as if the sight of the dead boy was breaking his heart, what could we say? Nothing! What could we do? Only ride away and bemoan the cruelties of war!

FOR NERVES AND BEAUTY

Proper Attention Given to the Diet Is a Matter of the Greatest Importance.

People need as much and as varied a food for their nerves as for their bodies, and nearly everyone needs to build up nerves even more than bodies. Especially those persons who are of a nervous disposition need a nourishing, nerve-building diet. Eggs served in various ways, milk and cereals should be a standard part of the diet. Supply your table with quantities of fruit and fresh vegetables, and serve bran bread or biscuit frequently.

It is well to read up on dietetics and keep the table free of unhealthful combinations and indigestible foods. This study is an interesting one, but beware of fads. A diet must be varied to be wholesome, and it is better to use spices and condiments in moderation than to let your table lack flavor from overzeal in leaving out everything that is not pre-eminent wholesome.

Physicians are often asked what advantage there is in drinking water and how much one should consume in a day. The water-drinking habit is a life-saver. Ice water should, however, be tabooed, especially at mealtimes. Also ice water inhibits the activity of the nerves of the stomach, and lowers the blood supply which is necessary to perfect digestion.

PAINTED HIS FACE BLACK

Chinaman Who Slipped Past the Inspectors Failed to Make His Legs Match.

Charley Soe, a Chinese sailor on the steamship C. A. Canfield, lying at Point Breeze, painted himself black in order that he might resemble a negro fireman, and walked ashore, making a direct course for Chinatown in a trolley car, says the Philadelphia Record.

After being in the car a short time the conductor noticed that, while Soe's face was black, his legs, which he had forgotten to paint, were of a different color. The conductor charged him with being a deserter from a ship. Soe assured the conductor that he was all right. He said he had been sent out for a doctor for the captain of the ship, who was very sick. He jumped off at the first drug store, and was not seen afterward.

The immigration officials heard of the escape and sent an inspector to the ship, who refused to permit the Canfield to proceed until Captain Penn pays the $500 fine due for violating the Chinese exclusion act.

A REMARKABLE INVESTIGATION

In the remarkable series of investigations which Basil M. Manly has conducted with a view to ascertaining to what extent the federal government is being cheated by income tax dodgers, figures are presented and conclusions drawn which thoughtful and patriotic Americans can no longer ignore.

He shows, for instance, that in New York 99 families own one-seventh of all Manhattan land values. IN CHICAGO, TEN FAMILIES OWN ONE-SEVENTH OF THE CITY'S LAND VALUES. In Cleveland 125 families own ONE-THIRD of the land values.

Ten billion dollars, MORE THAN ONE-FIFTH and almost ONE-FOURTH of the total income of all the American people, goes yearly to a mere handful of plutocrats who, with all their families, CONSTITUTE LESS THAN ONE PERCENT OF THE POPULATION.

Is there any food for thought in this, Mr. Taxpayer? Does it make anything plain to you that heretofore was a mystery? Does it suggest a future course of action?

We can talk all we please about the great era of prosperity that once more is with us. WHERE ARE THE FRUITS OF THIS PROSPERITY GOING? Who is getting it?

There never was a time when the tradesman, the grocer, the shoe dealer, the clothier and the dry goods man was harder pressed than he is right now.

There have been some slight increases in wage scales in the past five or six months. Yet were the truth known never has a dollar hot so little for the workman's table or for his home as right now. —"IN THIS ERA OF UNEXAMPLED PROSPERITY!"

Where does it go?
It is easier to give an answer by indirection, TO TELL WHERE IT ISN'T GOING.

It isn't going to the American farmer for, with a few rare exceptions the average farmer isn't making a paltry six percent on his investment.

It isn't going to the manual toiler for labor finds it utterly impossible to lay anything aside for a rainy day after the skimpiest of livings is provided for the family.

It isn't going to capital, for capital these days is even more hard pressed than labor in every competitive enterprise to make both ends meet and to pay a niggardly dividend.

And, as we said above, it isn't going to the retail tradesman, for storekeepers as a rule are extremely hard-pressed.

This leaves but one class to be the beneficiary of a nation's profits—those monopolists who, thru special privilege or the ownership or control of natural resources, ARE EXACTING THEIR ENORMOUS TOLL OF RENT IN EVERY CIVILIZED LAND.

The Manly Report shows the national income to have been $46,000,000,000 in 1914. There were in the country in 1914 21,000,000 wage earners who, together with those dependent on them, constitute about seven-tenths of the total population. These 24,000,000 actual wealth producers had a combined income of $15,000,000,000, less than one-third of the national income.

Farmers, including land owners and tenants, get $1,000,000,000, LESS THAN ONE-ELEVENTH OF THE TOTAL. Lawyers, doctors and other professional men deriving income from fees receive something less than $1,000,000,000.

The other $26,000,000,000, more than 56 percent of the total national income, goes to a few thousand multi-millionaires, the owners of municipal land values, franchises and the mineral resources which an all-wise nature provided for ALL her children to use without stint or hindrance.

These are the property values and these are the men who largely escape the super-tax on incomes. John D. Rockefeller's income.

UNCLE SAM

By Walt Mason

A patient man is Uncle Sam, as mild and gentle as a lamb. He takes no stock in useless serious, in swapping swats with bawling chaps, in pulling him and blocking eyes, just for the sake of exercise. But there will be a roundup yet, when Uncle Sam gets riled at last. Because he's patient and serene, and has a meek and tranquil mind, the wretches sometimes think it safe his grace and extend courtesies to him. They steal his dog and shoot his cat, and throw large derbies at his hat, their foolishness of still furthering him, until at last they twerk his nose. Then Uncle Sam takes out his gun, and talks his shirt-sleeves to his friends, saying, "I'm a little bit riled, and I'll have to holders till the wretches are all straightened out, in a bunch of shales, he'll whip us. I get a little bit riled, as he has whipped them in the past, when Uncle Sam gets riled at last. You cannot always look his stuns, and think he'll wear any more grins; his ribs, on one or always point, and think he'll take it as a joke. To order derbies, he'll be fast, when Uncle Sam gets riled at last.

based on a practical monopoly of a ~~great~~ natural resource, and obtained thru special legislative enactment and secret and criminal connivance with the great transportation companies, is greater than that of 100,000 average wage earners who, with their dependents, comprise approximately 400,000 of our population.

Mr. Manly cites ten American families whose incomes exceed that of 250,000 wage earners who, with their dependents, exceed the total population of the city of Cleveland.

More than two months ago in two editorials, the one entitled "The Fallacy of Income Taxes," and the other, "The Usual Excuse for Income Taxes," we pointed out what we believed were valid reasons why no income tax could ever be a success, either as a revenue producer or as a means to scale down those unearned incomes against which the law is directed.

The Manly report certainly supports with a wealth of facts and statistics the theories we then advanced.

The truth is there is ONLY ONE TAX THAT CANNOT BE SHIFTED and that is a tax which is derived from the rental value of land. This value is purely and wholly a community made value.

The public has to have funds to meet public debts and obligations. The community, which, in its joint capacity is the government, provides these funds thru the levying of taxes. If the community of itself creates a value, why not take of that value for community purposes? Why not raise the people's funds—taxes—from values which the people in their joint capacity make?

The taxation of the "unearned increment" is the only way by which unearned incomes can be taxed AND THE TAX NOT PASSED ON TO THE BACK OF LABOR.

This taxation of the "unearned increment" is the only tax that will not harass capital and burden labor. It is the only tax that will be absolutely just to rich and poor alike. It is the only tax that does not eat itself up in the levying and collecting. It is the only tax that will not penalize thrift and handicap industry. It is the only tax that will end all the grievously unjust forms of indirect taxation by which the weak and helpless are made to bear the burdens for the predatory few.

The whole tenor of the Manly Report indicates that this is the only form of taxation which points the way out of the grave difficulties which are burdening 95 percent of our people, altho his report makes no specific recommendation.

The summary of the Manly articles is contained in his concluding contribution and this one appears on the first page of this issue of The Tribune. It is well worth a careful reading by every citizen who is apprehensive of what present tendencies will lead to in the not distant future, unless the people have the wisdom to act promptly.

A BEST SELLER

By MARY C. ATWOOD

"Comstock has got out a new novel, I see," said Collins to Bartholow.

"Yes," Comstock is making money. How did he get his start?"

"By a misfortune."

"Come, cease to excite my curiosity and tell me the story."

"It was this way: Comstock tried scribbling at home, but made no success. Whether he wrote over the heads of the people, or under them, I don't know. His stories didn't sell. But Comstock had talent, and all he wanted was something to start him. One of his friends told him to go abroad. All Americans who succeed in literature make their living abroad, his friend said, and if Comstock was going to succeed he'd have to go too. There's a literary atmosphere there that doesn't exist here. Besides, the crowned heads take an interest in literary work, and a king may make an author if he chooses."

"Comstock was persuaded and went abroad. He picked up a living for awhile in London writing for the English magazine papers, then went on to the continent. He finally drifted to Constantinople, where he liked it so well that he stayed there a long while and learned the language perfectly."

"All this while Comstock refused to perch on his banner, but poverty did. When he was pretty near starved in Constantinople he got a job to write a serial novel for a daily newspaper there. He was to fill two columns a day, no more and no less. The price he was paid for his work was just enough to keep him alive."

"It happened that he struck a vein that was natural to him, and a good one too. He became absorbed in his work and was glad to be absorbed, because it made him forget his troubles. But having only enough writing to do each day to occupy three or four hours, he spent the rest of his time planning ahead. He would lay out impossible situations just to keep himself busy solving them. As for his general plan, that was so intricate that no one would ever suppose it possible to extricate his hero from the entanglement into which an adverse fate had cast him."

"One day while he was at work on his story he was astounded to see two policemen enter his den. Without a word of explanation he was ordered to follow them and bring with him his manuscript. It occurred to him that something he had written in his novel about the government might have caused his arrest, but this could not be, for on his arrival he was not only permitted to keep what he had written, but was commanded to finish his work. That he might be well situated to do so, he was given pleasant quarters and plenty to eat and drink. At first he was so frightened that he could not write, whereupon a member of the government sent him word that he was in no danger. This gave him courage, and he pursued his task."

"If he was anxious to kill time before his arrest he was now doubly so. He invented new complications and unraveled them. The situation grew more involved the nearer he approached the end, just as a stone revolved about a stick moves more rapidly as the string is shortened. He devoted every minute of his time and every fiber of his brain to his work and at the end of a few weeks after his imprisonment wrote the concluding chapter."

"When his story was finished he dreaded the long hours of confinement during which he would be free to brood upon his situation. He had not received the slightest information as to his offense. But he had not long to fret. As soon as his work was finished his prison doors were thrown open and he was permitted to go out a free man, besides being given a large bag of gold."

"And what do you suppose was the reason given? The sultan had one day picked up a copy of the newspaper in which his story was running and became interested in it. Too impatient to wait for it to come out from day to day in small quantities, he had taken a course to hasten the denouement."

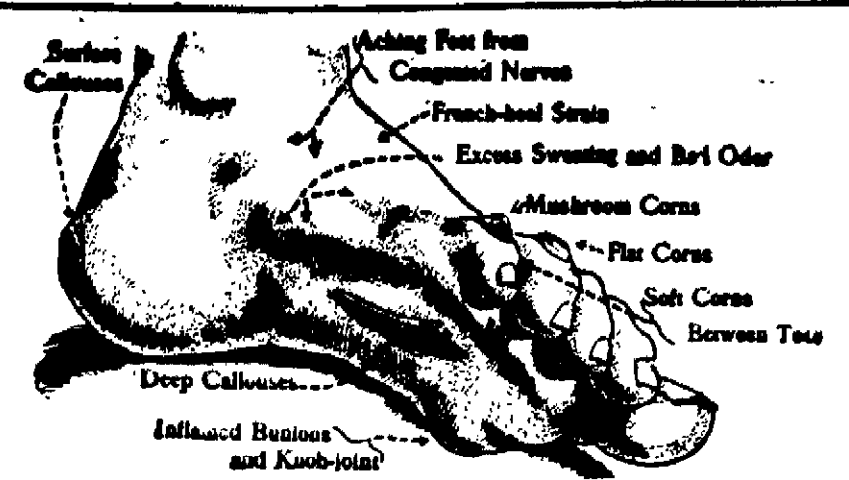

"Comstock was just tickled to death. He sent in a request through one of the sultan's household asking if the sultan would give him a puff to print with the publication of his novel in America. He was told that the sultan couldn't come down to that, but Comstock hit on the expedient of writing out a brief account of the matter for the newspapers. This he translated into English and got it started in American journals."

"Well, he published his novel, of course, just as these notices about his being imprisoned because the sultan of Turkey couldn't wait to see how it was coming out were being copied from paper to paper, and everybody was crazy to read the book. One edition after another was run out by the presses so fast that the printers got dizzy, but couldn't supply the demand. Comstock made twenty or thirty thousand dollars out of the story, and publishers are waiting for him when he gets up in the morning to secure a contract for his next."

"What was the name of this Turkish story?"

"I don't remember the name, but it stood first in a lot of best sellers."

GIRLS WHO DISAPPEAR.

Most Pathetic Incident in a Police Commissioner's Experience.

In the Woman's Home Companion Emily Barton field quotes General Theodore A. Bingham, former police commissioner of New York city, as saying that 50,000 girls disappear annually in the United States.

Nothing in his whole department service, General Bingham confesses, filled him with greater pity than the following single incident:

"It was dusk in New York, the hour when the streets are full of men and girls hurrying from work. The crowds streamed across Union square toward the subway in a great flood—the whole population of an average country town passing the corner every minute. Suddenly around the corner whirled a great express wagon. The driver whistled shrilly, and the crowd, made wary by long experience, scattered in all directions, all but one girl. A single moment she hesitated, glanced both ways, dropped back a step and then, changing her mind, dashed forward in an attempt to gain the other side.

"The moment's hesitation was too much. The frightened horses rushed on. Ten minutes later her lifeless body was borne away in an ambulance to the city morgue."

"There were no marks of identification on the girl's person. The police were reduced to the necessity of publishing a description in the newspapers, hoping that relatives would come to claim the body. And in answer to that description, which was made as detailed and accurate as possible, more than 300 mothers and sisters wrote or appeared at the morgue. More than 300 women within reach of the New York papers confessed that girls whom they loved, corresponding to the description of this girl, had disappeared. Not one of them was able to identify her. She was buried after a time at the city's expense.

"Three hundred women returned to pursue their fruitless search elsewhere. What had become of the 300 girls for whom they searched?"

The Birth of Reform Schools.

The first reform school for juvenile delinquents was probably the one organized at Melray, near Louvre, France, about the year 1839 by M. de Tetz, a noted counselor of Paris. M. de Tetz found in some wealthy noblemen the financial assistance he needed to materialize his idea, and the school was started with the most beneficent results. The idea was taken hold of in other quarters not only of France, but of other continental countries, and the enthusiasm created by the work resulted in the grand "conference of the reformatory union," the real beginning of our present day work in behalf of juvenile delinquents.

A Curious Remedy.

Perhaps the most curious remedy for sickness ever prescribed was that arranged by Sir Theodore Mayer for the English princess royal when she crossed to Belgium in 1612. Cinnamon, coriander, anise, ambergris, musk and sugar were to be made up into long tubes for her to munch on the voyage; a plaster of balsam of Peru, gum mastich and laudanum was to be applied to the pit of the stomach, and, in addition, she was to inhale the comforting vapors arising from a hash of toast, orange and citron peel, roses, lavender and cloves mingled with wine, cinnamon water and elder flower vinegar.

Royal Nicknames.

The title of Father of Country was bestowed by common consent upon Heinrich I. of Germany, Louis XVIII. of France, Robert of Normandy and Julius Caesar after he had quelled insurrection.

Father of His People was given to Louis X. and Louis XII.

Henry IV. of France, was called the Father and Friend of the People.

Philip II. of Spain was the Demon of the South.

Edward I. of England was Longshanks.

A Fair Proposition.

A popular comedian and playwright was praising the humorous value of suggestions. "It is funnier to suggest a thing," he said, "than to say it out. Playwrights should remember this. Suggestion—pregnant suggestion—is what makes really funny the little boy's remark to his father, 'Pa, if you help me with my arithmetic lesson tonight I'll tell you where ma hid your trousers.'"

Altogether Wrong.

"Pa," said the blooming daughter of the household, "I wish you wouldn't call young Mr. Softleigh a popinjay."

"And why not?"

"Because he isn't a jay, and there doesn't seem to be any hope of his poppin'."

Odd Marriage.

Two motion picture players, recently married at Texarkana, which is on the state line between Arkansas and Texas, stood one in one state and one in the other while the ceremony was going on, a harmless little publicity scheme which cost them nothing but the price of an extra license, it being necessary to have both Texas and Arkansas sanction for the nuptial.

ASCRIBED IT ALL TO FATE

Oriental Bore Each Other No Ill Will on Account of a Little Shooting Affair.

We were standing round a small fire—wrote Arminius Vambury, the Hungarian linguist and traveler, in his account of a caravan journey to Bokhara—when we were startled by two reports from firearms and the loud yelling of some person who was badly hurt. The whole caravan was alarmed, and we all ran to the rear where we found one of our companions with a shattered arm.

The cause of the affray was this: Several horsemen who were conveying the annual taxes from Shiraz to Tehran had come up with two Jewish shopkeepers, whom they first insulted and then started to assault, when a Persian of our company interfered. One of the horsemen became so enraged that he lifted his rifle and shot at the Jews. He afterward declared that he had intended to frighten one of the Jews by shooting through his cap, but he missed his aim and hit the Persian's arm.

The incident so exasperated the whole caravan that our men pursued the culprit and brought him back securely tied. The poor wretch was given such a beating that he was unable to walk, and was placed with his victim on one of the caravan mules. Left to themselves, the would-be murderer and his victim became quite friendly. They tied up each other's wounds, consoled one another, and went so far in their new-born friendship as to kiss each other; for, according to the eastern way of thinking, neither of them was to be held responsible for what had happened. Fate had willed it—YOUTH'S COMPANION.

SHARP ELBOWS MEAN HEALTH

Also They Do Not by Any Means Denote the Possession of a Quick Temper.

There used to be a notion that a sharp elbow was the sign of a short temper, and the wise lover would better steer clear of a girl if the joint in question was not nicely rounded.

A dimple on the side of the elbow was regarded as a great charm, and in the love stories of a generation ago the heroine was often described as possessing one.

All that sort of thing is out of date now. Not only has fashion decided that slim lines in the figure are to be desired, but science has come to the fore and pointed out that a firm-muscled form is an evidence of good health.

A plump, rounded elbow means that there is a considerable deposit of fat at a place where there ought not to be any, and it implies a certain lack of elasticity in the physical make-up, which probably shows also in the character.

The girl whose elbows are sharp need no longer trouble about hiding them with long sleeves, but may be proud of the fact that they show a trim and well-set frame.

Hard to Believe.

She—"I want you to forget that I told you I didn't mean what I said about not taking back my refusal to change my mind. I've been thinking it over, and I've decided that I was mistaken in the first place." "Do you really mean that, Isabel?"—Life.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is a sign you have been eating too much meat, which forms uric acid.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority.
Meat forms uric acid which over-works the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and log-gy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinious waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.
The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water seals and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine.
This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and had been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithiawater drink.

BLUEBIRD

Sialia sialis

Length, about six and one-half inches.

Range: Breeds in the United States (west to Arizona, Colorado, Wyoming, and Montana), southern Canada, Mexico, and Guatemala; winters in the southern half of the eastern United States and south to Guatemala.

Habits and economic status: The bluebird is one of the most familiar tenants of the farm and dooryard.
Everywhere it is hailed as the harbinger of spring, and wherever it chooses to reside it is sure of a warm welcome. This bird, like the robin, phoebe, house wren, and some swallows, is very domestic in its habits its favorite nesting sites are crannies in the farm buildings or boxes made for its use or natural cavities in old apple trees. For rent the bird pays amply by destroying insects, and it takes no toll from the farm crop. The bluebird's diet consists of 68 per cent of insects to 32 per cent of vegetable matter. The largest items of insect food are grasshoppers first and beetles next, while caterpillars stand third.

All of these are harmful except a few of the beetles. The vegetable food consists chiefly of fruit pulp, only an insignificant portion of which is of cultivated varieties. Among wild fruits elderberries are the favorite. From the above it will be seen that the bluebird does no essential harm, but on the contrary eats many harmful and annoying insects.
